

O Come, O Dayspring Psalm 126

Getting to Know you:

What expectations of 'normal' have you been letting go of lately?

Digging Deeper:

Can you remember a time when your weeping turned to shouts of joy? (Psalm 126:6)

Psalm 126 is a psalm about joy remembered and also about joy anticipated.

What does this Psalm say about remembering past joy and anticipating future joy?

How might this be relevant to our present time?

Taking it home:

Who is someone in this season who is especially in need of God restoring their fortunes?

What is one concrete way you can work with God in supporting this person?
